Mayor Fiorentini Recommends Energy Aggregation for Residents for Cost Savings

Today, Mayor James J. Fiorentini announced that he is requesting an energy aggregation option for residents. This winter, Haverhill residents have been hit with staggering increases in their electric bills from National Grid. National Grid electric rates have gone up by an unbelievable 37%. Because the City consumes large amounts of electricity, the Mayor was able to negotiate with other carriers a more favorable utility rate, saving the Municipality and City School Department a lot of money on electricity.

Mayor James J. Fiorentini stated:

“I want to give residents an opportunity to save money on utilities, energy aggregation will potentially achieve this goal.

“I want to share the savings with residents and this plan has the ability to help save money for everyone.”
